

IMPORTANT INFORMATION about your American Midwest Bank Checking Account

What You Need to Know about Overdrafts and Overdraft Fees

An overdraft occurs when a transaction presented on your account was paid when you did not have the funds to cover it. We can cover your overdrafts in two different ways:

1. We have standard overdraft practices that come with your account.
2. We also offer other overdraft protections plans which may be less expensive than our standard overdraft practices. To learn more, ask us about these plans.

This notice explains our standard overdraft practices.

What are the standard overdraft practices that come with my account?

We may authorize and pay overdrafts for the following transactions:

- Checks and other transactions made using your checking account number
- Automatic bill payments

We will authorize and pay overdrafts for the following types of transactions:

- ATM transactions
- Everyday debit card transactions (point-of-sale transactions)

We will not authorize and pay overdrafts for these types of transactions.

We will not authorize and pay overdrafts for the following types of transactions unless you ask us to:

- ATM Transactions
- Everyday debit card transactions

We pay overdrafts at our discretion, which means we do not guarantee that we will always authorize and pay any type of transaction. If we do not authorize and pay an overdraft, your electronic transaction will be declined.

What fees will I be charged if American Midwest Bank pays my overdraft?

Under our standard overdraft practices:

- We will charge you a fee of up to $30 each time we pay an overdraft.
